Call for papers

The CREM (Center of Research in Economics and Management), the laboratory SMART LERECO (Structure and Markets in Agriculture Resources and Territories) and TEPP (Theory and Evaluation of Public Policies) are pleased to organize the 38th Journées de Microéconomie Appliquée (JMA), days of Applied Microeconomics at the Faculty of Economics of the University of Rennes 1, Thursday 2 and Friday 3 June 2022.

The purpose of this two-day conference is to bring together academics and researchers to present and discuss their ongoing research, and to stimulate interaction and cooperation between them. Topics with an interest in the broad area of applied microeconomics are covered: consumer and demand analysis, producer and cost analysis, industrial economics, organizational economics, innovation economics, labor, education, health, family economics, public economics, spatial economics, transportations, finance, risk and insurance, development economics, welfare economics, agricultural economics, environmental economics and natural resources, law and economics, behavioral and experimental economics, applied micro econometrics, etc.

The conference will start with the keynote lecture given by John List, Professor of Economics at University of Chicago.

The JMA's job market will give the opportunity to PhD candidates and post-doctoral researchers to signal themselves in the program as candidates for the next recruitment campaigns.

The Revue Economique will devote a special issue for this conference in September 2023.
